THE MAGAZINE

OF THE

CONGREGATIONAL + SCHOOL.

EDITORIAL.

IT is with great regret that we have to begin this number of the Magazine by recording the serious illness of Jesse Davenport, who for so long has filled the post of Editor. Any imperfections in this issue, and especially of course in the Old Boys' News, must be attributed to his unavoidable absence from the Editorial chair. At the moment of writing we have good reports of him. He has left the Nursing Home, where he has spent several weeks, and is taking a much-needed convalescence by the sea. Every member of the Old Boys' Association will feel a warm personal concern in Davenport's speedy restoration to normal health and vigour, and will anxiously look for an announcement in our next issue that he is back at his old position as Editor of this Magazine.

Probably the most important event and topic of interest for every friend of the School since we last appeared is the BAZAAR. To those of us in the thick of it at the School, the whole of Creation from Heaven to the nethermost what-do-you-call-it (and perhaps more particularly the latter place) for weeks seemed but the frame-work to that monstrous word. Committees followed thick and fast. Contributions in money poured in on every hand. All the mysteries which come under the heading of "Work," arrived in hampers, baskets, parcels, crates. The local postman fainted on the door-step. Cushions enough to pave the playground, droves of doyleys (what is a doyley for?), tons of tea-cloths descended upon us. To attempt any detailed account of such a vast affair would necessitate an issue of the Magazine in three volumes. The full record of the diplomatic struggle between the Refreshment authorities and the Entertainments Committee—ending in a glorious victory for the former, who scored one of the most triumphant successes of the whole enterprise—would be a most exciting piece of literature. But, no! we must refrain. We can here only give the mere bare skeleton. But we must insist—first and last, and all the way through—that the Bazaar was a splendid success. It justified itself in every way; as a financial gold-mine; as a stupendous advertisement; as a social function; as an artistic effort; as a resuscitation of friendships; and as an enjoyable entertainment.

We had our “trial trip” in Bazaars, and good omen for our result, on Wednesday, 1st May, when the Rev. Ernest and Mrs. Dowsett and other friends at Lewisham High Road Church held a Sale of Work for the benefit of the School. The Church Hall was charmingly arranged. A series of entertainments was given, to which the School Glee Party and the Old Boys’ Choir contributed. Many friends of the School were present, and Mr. Dowsett was able to hand over to the general Bazaar Fund the sum of £130, a magnificent example of what can be done by organised effort in one Church. We are hoping that other Churches will follow this splendid lead. We have material enough left over from the main Bazaar to supply several Sales of Work. Emanuel Church, Dulwich, has already promised to hold one such sale in the autumn, and we have no doubt that other offers will be forthcoming.

The School Bazaar was held in the Holborn Hall, Gray’s Inn Road, on Wednesday, Thursday, Friday, 8th, 9th, 10th May. A strong Executive Committee had been at work for months beforehand. The decorations were put into the hands of Messrs. Lemaistre, of Manchester, and were admirably carried out in an Old English style. The Bazaar was opened on Wednesday by the Right Hon. T. McKinnon Wood, M.P. (chairman, the Rev. R. F. Horton, M.A., D.D.); on Thursday by Sir A. A. Haworth (chairman, the Rev. J. D.

Jones, M.A.); on Friday by the Rev. B. J. Snell, M.A., B.Sc. (chairman, Sir C. A. King, C.B.). There were altogether nineteen Stalls. Five of these were provided by London Churches (three General Stalls, a Sweet Stall, and a Flower Stall). The Caterham Church gave two Stalls (one General and one Pottery). The others were Essex Stall, Northern Counties, Southern Counties, Hastings (Mrs. Kirkpatrick and friends), Leicester Stall, Caterham School Stall, Secretary's Stall, Book Stall, Indian Stall, Art Needlework Stall, Great Wheel, Packing Stall. The Brixton Church undertook sole responsibility for the Refreshments, under the direction of Mrs. Laurance Bryant, and undoubtedly scored one of the chief successes of the Bazaar. Entertainments, nearly all of which were kindly provided by friends, took place upstairs, and various side-shows were assiduously carried on in different parts of the building.

A special feature of the second day was a visit paid by the two schools, Caterham and Milton Mount. The third day was the Old Boys' special occasion. The Old Boys' Choir sang several Gleees, and the Bazaar wound up with an Old Boys' supper.

Up to date the Bazaar Fund shows a net profit of £1300. Collecting cards issued to the present boys realised about £120. Those issued to Old Boys have in many cases not yet been sent in. Altogether, as has already been said, the Bazaar was a splendid success. The heartiest thanks are due to all the workers who strove so long and strenuously, and especially to the Bazaar Secretaries, Miss Donaldson and Mr. Orpet, who did an enormous amount of work extending over nearly a year. One most gratifying result of the persistent advertising of the school by the Bazaar and in other ways has been that our entry for the Summer Term, when we are usually satisfied with perhaps three new boys, has reached the figure of twenty-one!

One other exciting result of the Bazaar was that in the night after the last day, we suffered a burglary at the School. The miscreants appear to have thought there was a chance of "lifting" the entire Bazaar proceeds—a horrible idea. However, after ransacking several rooms, they secured some food, $8/8\frac{1}{2}$ in coppers, and the Head Master's overcoat!

OLD BOYS' FESTIVAL.

CATERHAM, 14TH-17TH JULY, 1912.

THIS year marks a new departure in Old Boys' gatherings, for it was decided that instead of spending one afternoon at the School for the Annual Cricket Match, Old Boys should be invited to stay for a week-end. H. H. Griffiths acted as organising secretary, and about thirty Old Boys were lodged at the Infirmary, with an overflow meeting in a tent on the hill.

Saturday was devoted to a whole-day match, the result on two innings being a draw (particular scores appear in the Cricket Notes).

The following signed the Visitors' Book during the week-end:—

T. Duncan Bell, Bernard Kettle, T. S. White, Cyril L. Davis, Percy C. Warner, Llewellyn ap Ivan, T. Evander Evans, H. H. Griffiths, G. L. Eynon, Leon. H. Snell, V. H. Mottram, A. B. Winter, Gilbert Scott, Victor Jones, L. C. Perry, R. C. L. Baker, Reginald C. Burt, James B. Reid, Marcus B. Dukes, W. M. Morgan, Wilfrid Hooper, C. Claude Cattermull, Alfred E. Walden, H. E. Sawdy, F. Norman Tinkler, E. H. Landel Jones, Idris Thomas, C. Brockis, T. B. Brewin, E. Docksey, E. T. Budden, Raymond Oliver, A. Davies, F. W. Ingram, S. Woodhouse, Ernest E. Caffyn, C. G. Henderson, G. Darroll Brough, Harold P. Plowright, Henry H. Morgan, W. E. Pratt, Wm. R. Richman.

On Sunday morning Old Boys and Present Boys went to Church. Special seats were reserved, and the service and sermon were adapted to the occasion. The weather throughout the week-end was torridly hot, and Sunday afternoon was in general a time of repose.

On Monday morning the School attempted work, while Old Boys amused themselves with cricket, tennis, fives, swimming, etc. At four o'clock in the afternoon the sports began. Details of events appear elsewhere. We had a most successful gathering. Mr. Emlyn, the sports secretary, is to be heartily congratulated on the "speed and accuracy" with which everything went off. The Challenge Shield was won by G. E. Patton, and the Territorial Cup by "North." Mrs. Mottram distributed the prizes, and a hearty vote of thanks was acknowledged by the Rev. W. Mottram.

The swimming match between Old Boys and Present Boys was won by the former by about a length.

On Tuesday morning our visitors left, and everyone agreed that an Old Boys' week-end is a most successful institution and must certainly become an annual fixture. Miss Donaldson made every arrangement for their comfort. The Committee Room became a smoking room, and was filled with incense from morn till dewy eve.

During the week-end most successful photographs of the whole School, the Team, the Prefects, and Old Boys were taken by Messrs. Bunce, of Upper Caterham.

A VISIT TO THE STATES AND CANADA.

AFTER we were dressed I had a chat with my German companion, and found he was also bound for Niagara Falls. When he learned that I knew his beloved Hamburg he almost fell on my neck and wept, and as he seemed a very nice fellow, I suggested that we should "do" Niagara together. We got out at the American station, and took the 'bus to the Clifton Hotel on the Canadian side, which stands almost opposite the American Fall, and gives you a very fine view of both it and the Canadian or Horse-shoe Falls. We got our first view of the Falls from the bridge which spans the gorge just below the Falls, and, truth to tell, I was disappointed with that first glimpse. I have heard since from a number of people that almost every one is: you expect the impression of the height of the fall to be greater. The fact is, the whole thing is so gigantic that it dwarfs itself in detail, and it is only when you get more used to it, and are able to examine it closely, that you are able to appreciate its terrific grandeur.

One of the first things I saw when we had crossed the bridge was a Union Jack floating from a tall flagstaff in the Victoria Park, which is situated close to the Falls. It was a pleasant, homely sight. We had a tub at the Clifton (which was very refreshing) and breakfast, and then, having hired an automobile—the equivalent of a taxi—at what I found out afterwards was a very moderate rate, we started out to see the place. We first had a good look at the general view—that from the Canadian side is by far the best. Almost opposite us was the American Fall, 167 feet high and about double as wide, then the thickly wooded shore of Goat Island, and then the enormous Horse-shoe fall.

The latter is not quite so high as the American (about 158ft.) but is far grander. The noise of the rushing water is tremendous, and dense clouds of spray rise constantly into the air. The spray from the Canadian Fall goes up hundreds of feet, and when the sun is shining the effect is weird and very beautiful. Curiously enough the water just below the Falls is comparatively quiet, so much so that a little steamer, called the "Maid of the Mist," steams up to within a hundred yards or so of where the mighty volumes of water crash over the precipice. Of course, there are strong eddies and currents which catch and whirl the boat about at times, and she must be handled by a very capable experienced man; what would happen if anything went wrong with the machinery one shudders to think—most probably she would get into the rapids and there would be an end. The explanation of the water here not being a seething mass is that its depth is so great—about 200 to 300 feet—and the pressure of the downcoming mass is not felt on the surface until you get nearly a mile further down the river, where the Niagara Rapids are. We drove to the Rapids and went down a steep inclined tramway on to a wooden platform close to the water. The Rapids are most marvellous and terrible. I really think they are as wonderful as and even more awe-inspiring than the Falls. The water there is 150 feet deep at least, and yet it is boiling and shrieking and seething into enormous waves 25 to 30 feet high, and tearing along at express train speed. Fancy trying to swim through such water, and yet that is what Captain Webb attempted. The old man who acts as guide saw him go in, and he was last seen just opposite where we were then standing. I do not think he was drowned, from what we were told it seemed as if the terrific pressure of the water just squeezed his life out. A man had been down in a barrel about ten days before (we saw the barrel), and another on the previous Sunday in a motor boat. The risk taken by the latter was awful. He just escaped by luck. The boat at times was thrown 30ft. into the air on the crest of the big waves.

From the Rapids we went on to the whirlpool just below. It is almost quiet water apparently in a semi-circular curve in the banks of the gorge, but it is deadly. It sucks everything that reaches it down hundreds of feet and keeps them down for a time and then throws them up again battered out of shape.

From there we went back to the Falls, and entering a dressing room in a kind of bazaar, where all kinds of souvenirs are sold, took off our overcoats and were dressed in heavy oilskins and waterproof helmets, with just a space for the eyes, nose and mouth, and rubber boots, and were taken down a lift to the entrance of a tunnel cut in the solid rock and on a level almost with the bottom of the Falls. We tramped through this narrow, half dark, wet place until we were right under and behind the big Horse-shoe Fall, and then came to an opening in the rock and stepped on to a strong wooden platform and there was the Fall right in front of us within two yards or so, just a solid mass of water, 20 feet thick, rushing down with a sound like thunder, and the spray was everywhere, dashing in our faces and half blinding us. I could have watched it for hours. There were several points from which we obtained different views, and all were weird and impressive and awe-inspiring.

Then we came back to the sunshine, and drove to various points round about to get the finest views from above, and from whatever aspect you see them they are always wonderful. We visited the Burning Well, a well of natural hot sulphur and iron impregnated water which gives off a powerful gas, and if a light is put to it, it burns with a fierce blue and yellow flame five or six feet high.

After lunch we went on the "Maid of the Mist." Here again we had to don oilskins, as the heavy spray gives the effect of one being in a very heavy rain storm.

I did not fully appreciate the beauty and grandeur of the Falls until that trip. We ran right up close under the American Fall, and were able to realise the enormous force and volume of the mass of water as it rushes over the edge of the cliff, and also the magnificence of the drop of 167 feet—a solid wall of foam-streaked water from 14 to 20 feet thick and as high as a church tower. We were unable to get quite so close to the Horse-shoe Falls, as the swirl of water there is very heavy, and several times the little steamer was caught and carried down the stream a few hundred yards and had to work back again, but it was a glorious view of the most wonderful exhibition of the forces of nature I have ever seen, except a very heavy sea in the Bay of Biscay in 1894.

Almost as wonderful, in fact in some ways even more so, are the engineering works just above the Falls on the Canadian side in connection with the Electrical Power Generating Station. In order to obtain proper control of the water supply they required, the engineers actually dammed up a section of the Rapids above the Falls and turned the course of the river, and now there are two huge artificial weirs over which the surplus water pours back to the river again. There was great anxiety at the time lest the construction of these works should affect the flow of water over the Falls, but they have calculated, after most careful inspection by a Board of Experts, that the difference is only a few hundredths of one inch, and the power obtained is enormous—approximately 500,000 horse power. There is a very ghastly association about the Falls—suicides average two a week all the year round, and while we were on the “Maid of the Mist” a man threw himself over the American Falls. We did not see him, in fact I did not know of it until the next day. After tea, my German friend had to catch his train back to New York, and we started in good time for the station so that we could walk round to Goat Island, and get views of the Falls from that side as well. There you get the Rapids above the Falls—miles and miles of them, all broken water and small falls, and a fine view of the full width of the river—and it is a big one, wider than the Thames at London Bridge—twice as wide, I should think. You can also stand on the very brink above the Falls and watch the water sliding over. It is very fascinating, and I can quite understand hysterical people being so hypnotised by the effect that almost unknowingly they throw themselves into the water before they are aware of what they are doing.

I saw my companion off by the train for New York ; he seemed quite sorry to go, and pronounced many German blessings on me and my "Frau" and children at home. He really was a good sort.

My bedroom windows commanded a glorious view of the Falls, and I revelled in it the next morning while dressing. I left that day for Toronto, and after a not very interesting journey arrived there in the afternoon.

Toronto is a fine city, well laid out with broad streets, and has some fine public and office buildings, but there is nothing very specially attractive or noticeable about it except its fine position on Lake Ontario. It is not a healthy place. The water supply drawn from the Lake is tainted, and there is always a certain amount of typhoid in the city. It is a very hot place in summer and fearfully cold in winter—the temperature frequently dropping many degrees below zero.

Next day I proceeded to Ottawa. It is a long journey, taking from 9 a.m. until about 4 p.m., and the country is not very interesting, though largely more or less virgin forest, and not very highly cultivated even where clearings have been effected. The soil is good in places, but in others the bare rock crops up continually, and there is also a lot of marsh land which will have to be drained and cleared before it can be of much use. We passed through some fairly big and prosperous-looking towns, one bearing the homelike name of Peterborough ; and at one place there was an immense factory of the Singer Sewing Machine Company, their centre for the Canadian trade.

I arrived at Ottawa on time, and went direct to the Offices of the Law Agents there, and I am glad to say that after a consultation succeeded in working the oracle, so that before I left I had in my possession the documents I had come so far to obtain, and which I had previously been told I could not get until quite the end of the month at the earliest.

I found my train for Montreal did not start until next day. I spent the morning having a good look round the city, which is well worth it. The position of Ottawa is fine, it stands on a high plateau overlooking the Ottawa River, and the steep banks—almost cliffs—are wooded the whole way down to the water's edge. Overlooking the river in a Park stand the Dominion Government buildings, a fine impressive block, built of solid-looking grey and red stone. I went over the Parliament House, which, in addition to the two Houses for the Senate and Chamber of Representatives, contains a magnificent library, a very fine reading and smoking room, and a gallery of portraits of past Speakers of the House—taking them all round, a fine powerful-looking lot of men, both physically and mentally. It was not a nice day, chilly and damp, and so I did not see as much as I might otherwise have done.

My journey to Montreal was uneventful, and I arrived there just in time for dinner, and then to bed as I was fagged out. Had I been well I should have travelled on to Hartford that night, but I was unfit to do so and decided to have a night's rest and go on next day. Montreal is a town of churches—there is no end to them, and I firmly believe they all have clocks that strike every quarter of an hour. I know I heard almost every hour struck, so you may guess I did not get very much sleep. My train left soon after eight, and I had given very strict instructions about my bag, which contained the precious documents. When the time came for me to start, it could not be found. I "rowed" the Head Porter and the Office Clerk, and a hunt was made: still no bag. Then the Porter suggested it might be at the station, so off we went with only ten minutes to spare. Arrived there, we made inquiry, but no trace of the bag could be found—only five minutes before the train was due out—and so I really gave it up and had started to return to the Hotel when we met a man charging madly down the slope with the bag. Off we all three tore to the train. It was actually due out, and I caught it just as it began to move. The Manager had given the bag specially into this man's charge. In fact, he took such great care of it that when wanted neither he nor the bag could at the moment be found.

I was not due to reach Hartford until nearly nine, with changes at Rutland, Bellows Falls, and Springfield, so I settled myself down for a long day. We were soon over the border of the U.S.A., and fortunately the Customs people gave us very little trouble, and then we entered Vermont, and began the long steady climb up to the Mountains and past some of the most beautiful and picturesque lakes. In one place the line is laid on a permanent way right through Lake Champlain, so that you have a wide expanse of water on each side of you, almost as far as the eye can reach, and then again you run through narrow gorges with high overhanging cliffs on either hand. The wooding all through this long journey was fine, right up to the tops of the mountains. On the left hand, running south, you have the Green Mountains, and on the right hand the Adirondacks—the latter said to be the most beautiful in this country, although not very high.

The frosts had already begun up there, and the resultant tinting of the foliage was simply superb. One cannot describe it. It ranged through every shade of green, yellow and red, from the palest tint of tender springlike green to the darkest black green of the firs, and the maple leaves were anything from almost yellowy white to deep blood red. They say there are no autumnal tints like those seen here, especially among the maples.

The travelling was a bit exciting—the track did not seem to be any too well laid, and we jolted and rocked to an alarming extent going up the incline, and when we reached the summit and began to descend it was like a switchback. They simply let the thing rip, and one of the attendants told me we were doing about 65 to 70 miles an hour over part of the journey. However, we came down in safety, and eventually, I reached Hartford and the Allyn House, Hartford (where I stayed that night) very dirty, dusty and tired, but with many most interesting memories.

By the way, I don't think I have mentioned that almost all the train attendants are Blacks. They are very attentive. They always give you a broad grin after dusting your seat, brushing your clothes and hat, or giving you any other attention, and they perform these little duties at short intervals throughout the journey. Every time a nigger grins at you, you pay him 10 cents. This is not an obligation under the generous constitution of the U.S.A., but it is a custom sanctioned by tradition, and if you value your personal comfort you pay and look as pleased as you can.

A. DE BURIATTE.

NEWS OF OLD BOYS.

FEW small schools were so favoured as our own at the recent distribution of honours on the King's Birthday, for the names of two Old Boys appeared on the list, C. A. King becoming Sir Charles A. King, K.C.B., and Andrew Percy Bennett being given his C.M.G.

From the foundation of the Association Sir Charles King has been a member, and has on many occasions shown his active interest in the work of the School. It will be remembered also that he presided at the opening of the Bazaar on Old Boys' Day. Sir Charles is the Controller of the Savings Bank Department of the General Post Office, and he is the first Old Boy to receive a K.C.B.

Percy Bennett, who has for some years been engaged as His Majesty's commercial attaché at Berlin, Vienna, Rome, and Athens, will be remembered by men of a younger generation as a very successful bowler and first-rate bat. Two brothers, John (now in Australia) and A. B. (now of Felixstowe), will also be remembered by men of the 'seventies.

At a meeting of the School Committee a resolution congratulating Sir Charles King and Percy Bennett, C.M.G., was unanimously passed; and the resolution will, we feel sure, be endorsed by all our readers.

G. H. Ashbery has been making some good scores lately. Another Old Boy has been felicitated on the announcement of an engagement.

In addition to many other duties, Duncan Bell has for several years been secretary of the Surrey Congregational Union. He has recently resigned that office, and the Union at its last meeting showed its appreciation of Mr. Bell's labours by the presentation of a handsome case of cutlery.

Harold E. Brierley, of Highbury Quadrant, has been elected Captain of the Free Church Ministers' Golfing Club. At the recent tournament he gained the second prize.

Sydney T. Butler, of Long Eaton, has decided, on account of his health, to take charge of a church at Kingston, Ontario. Two purses of gold, as well as a case of cutlery, were presented to him on leaving Long Eaton. Herbert Stowell (late of Orton) has been recognised as pastor of Whitehaven Congregational Church.

We regret to record the death of Richard J. Corke at Cottingham, near Hull. After leaving Lewisham Mr. Corke went to Cotton End College in order to train for the ministry, and at the time of his death he was one of the few ministers living who passed through that College. Mr. Corke was in charge of the Church at Burford from 1871 to 1881, and at Burley-in-Wharfedale from 1881 to 1891. Since 1891 he had been without a charge.

We also regret to record the death of James J. Hicks at Blandford. For many years Mr. Hicks had been a member of the Association and a subscriber to the School funds, and up to the last he retained an active interest in the School. At Blandford, where he carried on a successful drapery business, he was a deacon of the Congregational Church, and for, we believe, forty years was superintendent of the Sunday School.

An Old Boy of the 'thirties, Samuel Johnson, has also joined the great majority. Very few of that period besides Rev. John Mark and Theophilus D. Hall are left. Mr. Johnson had retired from business and resided at Luton, where his death took place.

With the friends of Messrs. Corke, Hicks, and Johnson our readers will sympathise, and also with Theophilus D. Hall, M.A., on the death of his second son, Max Sainsbury Hall, at Pretoria, South Africa.

F. W. Moorman has been appointed Professor of English at Leeds University, at which A. Ruston is Professor of Engineering. P. R. Oliver has passed the final examination of the Law Society, and is now a fully qualified solicitor.

Like his brothers, I. Newton Moss believes that all ratepayers should take an active interest in municipal work. As he cannot conveniently become a member of the Herne Bay Urban District Council himself, he does his best to get good men elected, and at a recent contest his nominee was chosen. Mr. Moss is also a worker at the Congregational Church, popular with all sections of the Church, particularly with the children.

Old Boys worked well for the success of the recent Bazaar. Three (Rev. E. E. Dowsett, Idris Thomas and Cowell) were not content with the Bazaar at Holborn Town Hall, and conducted one on a smaller scale at Lewisham High Road, which realised £129. Thanks are due to them and also to all those who assisted so loyally in making the Holborn Bazaar so successful. To A. W. Ridler and W. R. Richman also special gratitude is due. The former is the writer of many successful books, and his production of the "Souvenir" well merited the comments of praise given to it, particularly as the book was produced under difficult circumstances and at short notice. W. Richman also devoted considerable time to detail work in connection with the Advertising Sub-Committee.

Those of our readers who scanned the list of workers in "The British Congregationalist" on behalf of the fund raised by Rev. J. D. Jones will notice the number of Old Boys who are actively supporting the effort; while on a recent evening, at a Congregational gathering in a church not a hundred miles from the Memorial Hall, the chairman was an Old Boy, the speaker of the evening was an Old Boy, and so also were the organist and the gentleman who gave out the notices. Who says the School does nothing for Congregationalism?

SCHOOL NOTES.

A FINE portrait of Stanley B. Atkinson has been presented to the School by the Old Boys' Association, and will find a fitting home in the Committee Room with those of other benefactors and friends.

Congratulations to J. Scott on his first-class in the Second Part of the Natural Science Tripos. Also to Eric Heather on taking his B.Sc.

G. Keesey has been appointed Science Master at Wellington College.

Another Examination success (in the Lower Third):—

Question: Write out a list of the twelve apostles.

Answer: Mathew, Mark, Luke, John, Titus, Philemon, Solomon, Hebrews, Job, Daniel, Mecca, Amos.

Last year we had one boy in for Intermediate: this year two. Next year we hope to have six. Sic itur ad astra.

William John Tucker,

DIED AT THE SCHOOL, 31st MAY, 1912.

Aged 13 years.

THE DEBATING SOCIETY.

THERE were not so many debates in the Christmas and Easter terms as is usual, but on the whole those that were held were exceedingly good. The subjects chosen for discussion by the Committee were of varied interest, and in most cases were topical both politically and personally. The strikes then prevalent, and the Home Rule Bill, proved very interesting topics. We were occasionally assisted by the staff, of whom Mr. Weaver, who was then with us, was most interested. It was also particularly noticeable by "We English," the splendid and plucky way in which Clerjaud spoke at these meetings, and often his ideas, though not always quite clearly expressed, carried much weight.

It might be added that the speeches were mostly confined to a certain clique of people, and their appearance was somewhat recurrent, but on the other hand it was pleasing to note the splendid way in which the younger element took part, and we hope that next term we may have some more interesting and instructive evenings.

The following is a list of the debates:—

14TH NOVEMBER, 1911.—Motion: "That stamp-collecting encourages worst instincts in boys." The motion was lost by 21 to 7.

2ND DECEMBER, 1911.—Motion: "That the popularity of the Reading Room is unfortunate, in that it tends to destroy the true love of literature." The motion was lost by 22 to 10. This subject entailed a keen discussion.

Another short and humorous debate was held just afterwards on the motion: "That the pursuit of Music is deleterious to the young of both sexes." After some good speeches the motion was lost by 19 votes to 11.

13TH FEBRUARY, 1912.—Motion: "That Professionalism is degrading to Sport." The motion was won, after keen discussion, by 12 votes to 8.

4TH MARCH, 1912.—Motion: That the granting of Home Rule to Ireland is desirable." This was, of course, one of our keenest debates, when Mr. Weaver and Clerjaud were both present. The motion was carried by 28 votes to 10.

18TH MARCH, 1912.—Motion: "That the granting of the Minimum Wage is desirable." This was our last debate, when interest was soon aroused, it being the time of the strike. There were many excellent speeches, and the result clearly shows the opinion of the meeting. Motion was won by 35 votes to 4.

ENTERTAINMENT NOTES.

EASTER TERM.

COMMENCING with a Territorial Night, when the four leagues compete for the championship, the entertainments have been much brighter this term, which is mainly due to the discovery of two "stars," Kirkpatrick, whose voice, a ringing tenor, adds much to the enjoyment of the evening; and A. E. Hughes, who gives musical monologues.

It was mainly due to Kirkpatrick's efforts, together with those of B. I. Davies, our chief pianist, that South won the territorial championship. South's programme included C. E. Rowe, whose recitation was greatly appreciated and received high marks from the judges. S. S. L. Jackson sang well for East, and West scored through Whale's recitations.

A. E. Hughes, whose humorous recitations have long been much-appreciated items in the concerts, has been amusing us with the aid of a piano, and his first song, "Back to the Land," obtained a tremendous popularity, for everyone either sang, whistled, or strummed it for weeks after he first astonished us with it.

The reciters deserve a paragraph to themselves, for the recitations this term have been excellent. There is a variety in them which is very pleasing. K. B. Jones can hold his audience enthralled with "The Revenge" or the "Curfew Bell," and comes very near to Garro-Jones, our premier reciter, who left in the summer; whilst W. Ingram's whimsical way of telling the "Irish Fire Brigade" story is delightful. Then there is Enoch i, who always gets the most out of a piece, and B. Hallett Williams, a new figure on the platform, gives a very good interpretation. I always reserve Dash, "the smallest boy in the School," for the latter part of the programme, when the boys are apt to become a little tired. With his "Cautionary Tales for Children," told in his own way, he can always rouse the audience to enthusiasm, and never fails to delight us.

We have had much assistance from the staff. Miss Peck has returned and has lost none of her charm, as is shown by her numerous recalls. Then Mr. Weaver, always willing to make a thing go, gives us some splendid songs. Mr. Emlyn, too, was cheered for his "Longshoreman Tom." His idea of having the chorus written on a blackboard, to give the boys a chance of joining in, met with great success. Of course, Mr. Stafford has played a large part in the entertainments, and his humorous readings are very much appreciated.

For a most enjoyable evening at the last entertainment of the term, our best thanks are due to Mrs. Milledge and Miss Winter. The night was a stormy one and the boys appreciated the efforts made by these ladies to give us a good time. Mrs. Milledge must have found it hard work coming up from the village in the teeth of the storm, but we gave her a hearty encore for her excellent recitations. Miss Winter, too, had to make an effort, for she was due at a fancy-dress ball shortly after she sang to us, and so appeared in Old English costume, which, however, only enhanced the situation, for her songs were of the Old English variety. "Oh, no John" had a splendid reception, as also did "Robin Hood's Wedding."

Thorne and his party provided a very pleasant evening at the end of term. Miss Thorne charmed us all with her singing, and Thorne himself gave three good songs. Those who were at School with Millar were surprised at his capital rendering of "Stone-Cracker John," and the "Gay Drum Major" brought down the house.

Thorne brought a friend, whom the boys cheered enthusiastically for his remarkably clever songs and impersonations. He was encored for every item and frequently received a double recall. We have never heard anyone give the "Simple Country Curate" as he did.

Miss Thorne accompanied throughout as gracefully as she sang, and we are living in expectations of Thorne bringing down his party again.

We broke up with Progressive Games, when Kirkpatrick won the first prize, thus adding another crown of laurels to his already crowded brow. We owe our best thanks to Miss Donaldson and Mr. Mottram for the evening's entertainment, which was heartily enjoyed by all.

SCIENTIFIC SOCIETY.

OUR first expedition this term took the form of a delightful ramble to Titsey on 2nd June. After a brief explanatory meeting, in which Mr. Mottram described the points of interest and geological strata of the route, over forty of us, including five Masters, assembled by the front door.

Our course lay through Marden Park, where we peeped at the Mushroom Mines, and along the top of the downs to Titsey. After about an hour's walking, we came to the top of the Oxted Chalk Pits, where we formed a camp and ate oranges, at the same time watching the men at work in the lime kilns below. Then we went through a large wood and dropped into Titsey, where tea had been provided in a meadow. As this was not quite ready, we went to see the old-fashioned church.

After a very welcome tea, we were taken through the extensive grounds of the famous cricketer, Mr. Leveson-Gower, to explore the remains of a Roman villa. Thence we hurried to Oxted station, but arrived just in time to see the train steam out. We decided to wait for the next, and occupied the waiting time by a visit to the picturesque village of Old Oxted. Taking good care to catch the next train, we arrived at Woldingham about 8.30, whence we soon walked back to School. We got here feeling tired and quite ready for the supper, which was waiting in the Dining Hall, but well satisfied with the expedition.

HOCKEY.

EASTER TERM.

I AM sure we all congratulate ourselves on one of the most successful, if not the most successful of seasons, we have ever had. Quite a high standard of play has been maintained, and often the combination of the team has been most excellent.

Our first match against Haling, which we won 10—1, augured well for a successful season, and we had an unbroken run of success until the last game, when we seemed to fall all to pieces and succumbed to Birkbeck College.

The Captain and Vice-Captain wish to thank all those who have helped them to mark out and to put the goals up, as well as the Masters for refereeing in Leagues.

THE TEAM.

GAY (Vice-Captain).—Plays equally well in any position in the half-line. Tackles hard and feeds his forwards well.
(Old Colour.)

JONES, T.—Left-half. Hits well and tackles very fairly but is inclined to jump at times. (Colour.)

JOHNSON.—Goal. Has very seldom been tested but has often saved well. Clears well. (Colour.)

MORGAN.—Right back. A splendid tackler and clears beautifully. (Old Colour.)

GARLICK.—Left back. Tackles well and at times clears well but is apt to get excited and mis-hit. (Colour.)

THE LEAGUES.

The senior Hockey Leagues have provided many excellent games. South came out first with 10 points, East were second with 7 points, and West and North were third and fourth with 4 and 3 points respectively. The maximum number of points was 12.

The juniors have had three rounds of football and the games were very keen. The captains were Jones iv, Stevens i, Gay ii, and Butcher ii. Stevens' team were first, being 1½ points ahead of Gay's eleven.
